

Oh Simon, Oh Simon,
Before the morning comes you will disown me.
Oh Simon, Oh Simon,
Before the morning comes you will disown me.
But I will always love you.
And I will not forsake you.
You know I came to seek and save the lost.

F#m Bm F#m Bm
This is my body, I lay it down for you.
F#m Bm G A A7
This is my blood poured out, that you might live anew.

Oh Father, Oh Father,
Forgive them for they know not what they do.
Oh Father, Oh Father,
Forgive them for they know not what they do.
They have lost their way like children,
Gone astray like children,
And I have come to seek and save the lost.
You know I came to seek and save the lost.
© Richard Cootes